Why the Humanities matter for Science, and why Science matters for the Humanities? Intradisciplinary perspectives

This talk will pick up the baton of most intensive discussions in recent times both within and outside of academia regarding the value of the Humanities faced by the enormous growth of STEM (MINT). I want to argue that this dichotomy is a false one and needs to be remedied, but not simply from one side alone, but from both. No one would doubt the value of STEM, whereas the Humanities seem to be a weak field. However, in close consideration, science without humanities is a lost cause, and humanities without science might be pure speculation or imagination. and used for this target group (Roskenet al. 2021, Smith 2022, Potter, S., Peter Cudd, P., and de Witte, L. 2019).

Biography:

Dr. Albrecht Classen is University Distinguished Professor of German Studies at the University of Arizona and has published, currently, 119 scholarly books and ca. 820 articles. He is focused currently on topics of 'the secret in medieval lit.' (book to appear in Sept. 2022), on globalism in the pre-modern world (maybe June 2023), and has explored many other fundamental issues in his work. He is the editor of the journals Mediaevistik und Humanities. He holds the rank of knight since 2017.
